   issues facing the financial industry. The Conference will cover a wide range of emerging topics related to the challenges and opportunities in the wake of deepening economic, financial and environmental crisis and will discuss solutions to position financial institutions as robust partners in sustainable development.

8. Interdisciplinary Social Sciences - http://thesocialsciences.com/ - Organizes the International Conference on Interdisciplinary Social Sciences

The objective of the conference is to gather the most recent researches upon the changes in inequality within globalized economies, with a special attention devoted to the links between inequalities, labour markets, skills and education. An additional goal is to create and facilitate links between researchers, decision-makers, and all private and public actors interested in the understanding of the main determinants and implications of social and economic inequalities.

Members seek to develop a psychological science and practice that is contextually informed, culturally inclusive, serves the public interest and promotes global perspectives within and outside of APA. The Division of International Psychology represents the interest of all psychologists who foster international connections among psychologists, engage in multicultural research or practice, apply psychological principles to the development of public policy or are otherwise concerned with individual and group consequences of global events.

The International Society for the Social Studies (ISSS) is a non-profit, professional society devoted to the social studies. ISSS is an international interdisciplinary society for individuals striving to promote and enhance the importance of social studies education across the world. Organizes annual conference.

The International Studies Association (ISA) is the premier organization for connecting those interested in pursuing mutual interests in international studies. The International Studies Association (ISA) was founded in 1959 to promote research and education in international affairs. With well over five thousand members in North America and around the world, ISA is the most well respected and widely known scholarly association in this field. ISA cooperates with 57 international studies organizations in over 30 countries, is a member of the International Social Science Council, and enjoys nongovernmental consultative status with the United Nations. ASA organizes annual convention and joint conferences with other organizations; also, there are regional conferences and conferences relating to specific sections.

The Society for Community Research and Action - Community Psychology, Division 27 of the American Psychological Association - is an international organization devoted to advancing theory, research, and social action. Its members are committed to promoting health and empowerment and to preventing problems in communities, groups, & individuals. SCRA serves many different disciplines that focus on community research and action. Sponsored journal: American Journal of Community Psychology.

Members conduct research and advance theory to improve interactions between human behavior and environment and population. Members' varied interest include contextual theories and methods, human responses to natural and technological hazards, conservation psychology, AIDS, teenage pregnancy, environmental perception and cognition, loneliness, stress, and environmental design. Members receive the Division's Population & Environmental Psychology Bulletin three times annually.

SPSSI's founding objectives were to (1) encourage research upon those psychological problems most vitally related to modern social, economic and political policies, and (2) help the public and its representatives to understand and to use contributions from the scientific investigation of human behavior in the formation of social policies. Sponsored journals include: Journal of Social Issues, Analyses of Social Issues and Public Policy, and Social Issues and Policy Review.

Members work to promote peace in the world at large and within nations, communities and families. It encourages psychological and multidisciplinary research, education and training on issues concerning peace, nonviolent conflict resolution, reconciliation and the causes, consequences and prevention of violence and destructive conflict. The Division fosters communication among researchers, teachers and practitioners who are working on these issues and are applying the knowledge and methods of psychology in the advancement of peace and prevention of violence and destructive conflict. The Division seeks to make connections between all areas of psychological work and peace and welcomes participation from all areas of the discipline. A Division journal, Peace and Conflict: The Journal of Peace Psychology, is published quarterly.

The United Nations is convening a three-day summit of world leaders from 24 to 26 June 2009 at its New York Headquarters to assess the worst global economic downturn since the Great Depression. The aim is to identify emergency and long-term responses to mitigate the impact of the crisis, especially on vulnerable populations, and initiate a needed dialogue on the transformation of the international financial architecture, taking into account the needs and concerns of all Member States

• International Journal of Interdisciplinary Studies in Communication

International Perspectives in Psychology: Research, Practice, Consultation is committed to publishing research that examines human behavior and experiences around the globe from a psychological perspective. It publishes intervention strategies that use psychological science to improve the lives of people around the world. The journal promotes the use of psychological science that is contextually informed, culturally inclusive, and dedicated to serving the public interest. The world’s problems are imbedded in economic, environmental, political, and social contexts. International Perspectives in Psychology incorporates empirical findings from education, medicine, political science, public health, psychology, sociology, gender and ethnic studies, and related disciplines.

The journal addresses international and global issues, including: inter-group relations, disaster response, societal and national development, environmental conservation, emigration and immigration, education, social and workplace environments, policy and decision making, leadership, health care, poverty and economic justice, the experiences and needs of disadvantaged groups.

Peace and Conflict: Journal of Peace Psychology welcomes scholarly manuscripts that examine peace, conflict, and their interaction at all levels of analysis, from interpersonal to community, regional, national, and international issues. The journal publishes empirical, theoretical, clinical, and historical papers and book reviews on emerging and enduring issues of interest to researchers, practitioners, policy makers, and educators. International in scope, the journal welcomes manuscripts from psychologists and scholars in kindred disciplines throughout the world.

The Review of Economics of the Household publishes empirical and theoretical research on the economic behavior and decision-making processes of single and multi-person households. The journal emphasizes economic analyses on the effects of policy instruments on household decisions, macroeconomic applications, and research on economic development. Not wedded to particular models nor methods, the journal fosters high quality research using a variety of approaches.

The Review of World Economics is an official journal of the Kiel Institute for the World Economy. The journal emphasizes empirical studies in international economics, featuring papers contributed by renowned scholars from around the world. Founded in 1913 under the name of Weltwirtschaftliches Archiv, it is the world's first journal focusing on international economics. Among the topics covered are trade and trade policies, international factor movements and international business, international finance, currency systems and exchange rates, monetary and fiscal policies in open economies, economic development, and technological change and growth.

The World Bank Economic Review is one of the most widely read scholarly economic journals in the world. It is the only journal of its kind that specializes in quantitative development policy analysis. Subject to strict refereeing, articles examine policy choices and therefore emphasize policy relevance rather than theory or methodology. Readers include economists and other social scientists in government, business, international agencies, universities, and research institutions. The WBER seeks to provide the most current and best research in the field of economic development.

World Development is a multi-disciplinary monthly journal of development studies. It seeks to explore ways of improving standards of living, and the human condition generally, by examining potential solutions to problems such as: poverty, unemployment, malnutrition, disease, lack of shelter, environmental degradation, inadequate scientific and technological resources, trade and payments imbalances, international debt, gender and ethnic discrimination, militarism and civil conflict, and lack of popular participation in economic and political life. Contributions offer constructive ideas and analysis, and highlight the lessons to be learned from the experiences of different nations, societies, and economies. World Development recognizes 'development' as a process of change involving nations, economies, political alliances, institutions, groups, and individuals. Development processes occur in different ways and at all levels: inside the family, the firm and the farm; locally, provincially, nationally, and globally. Our goal is to learn from one another, regardless of nation, culture, income, academic discipline, profession or ideology. We hope to set a modest example of enduring global cooperation through maintaining an international dialogue and dismantling barriers to communication.

The World Economy is a vital resource for researchers, analysts and policy-advisors interested in trade policy and other open economy issues embracing international trade and the environment, international finance, and trade and development. The journal also considers related areas such as economies in transition and development economics, making The World Economy an essential reference for in-depth knowledge on and up-to-date coverage of international economic relations.
FUNDING SOURCES

   Partnerships for International Research and Education (PIRE) is an NSF-wide program that supports international activities across all NSF supported disciplines. The primary goal of PIRE is to support high quality projects in which advances in research and education could not occur without international collaboration. PIRE seeks to catalyze a higher level of international engagement in the U.S. science and engineering community.
Awards grants to support a variety of charitable projects in the United States and abroad, seeking to expand knowledge, clarify values and critical choices, nurture creative expression, and shape public policy.

17. Welcome Trust - http://www.wellcome.ac.uk/Funding/index.htm
Supports international research and research capacity building work relevant to developing or restructuring countries.

The International Collaborative Research Grant (ICRG) supports international research collaborations between two or more qualified scholars, where the principal investigators bring different and complementary perspectives, knowledge, and/or skills to the project. Supplemental funds are also available to provide essential training for academic research participants in ICRG-funded projects (co-applicants, students, as well as other professional colleagues). By encouraging international collaborations, the grant contributes to the development of an international anthropology that values and incorporates different national perspectives and resources. By providing training funds, the grant helps to build capacity in countries were anthropology may be under-resourced. The grants are for a maximum of $30,000 for the research project. Proposals which include the optional training element can have an increased funding request up to a maximum of $35,000, of which no more than $10,000 can be for essential training purposes. Under special circumstances grants can be renewed to support longer-term research projects. Principal Investigators must hold a doctorate or equivalent in anthropology or a related discipline. Applicants must submit application materials using the Foundation's online application submission procedure as well as send printed copies of these materials to the Foundation by regular mail.

General Options for Global Studies

1. CIA – Graduate Studies Program – Information Management Officer - Internship

2. CIA – Open Source Officers
   https://www.cia.gov/careers/student-opportunities/graduate-studies-program-open-source-officers.html
Open Source Officers (OSOs) are the Intelligence Community's experts in collecting and analyzing publicly available information in the foreign arena. Open Source Officers apply their foreign language, area knowledge, and subject matter expertise to review and assess publicly available information in the foreign arena—including radio, television, press, geospatial sources, Internet sites—and specialized publications—to deliver high-impact products to the US foreign affairs community. OSOs develop and apply in-depth knowledge of a broad range of publicly available information to identify trends, patterns, and often subtle relationships that provide unique insights into national security issues. OSOs may specialize in an area of the world (country or region) or a specific topic (i.e., military, economy, emerging media technologies, terrorism, proliferation, cyber security, science & technology, etc). Additionally, OSOs may manage the collection and analysis of open sources by foreign national staff and contractors throughout the United States and overseas. Eligibility: U.S. citizens only, pre-doctorate. Position is paid.

3. Council On Foreign Relations –
   http://www.cfr.org/about/career_opportunities/internships.html
   The Council on Foreign Relations’ Internship Program offers outstanding volunteer opportunities for college students, graduate students, and graduates focusing on international relations and who are pursuing a career in foreign policy or a related field. Interns are recruited year-round on a semester basis to volunteer in both the New York and Washington, DC, offices, and all internships are filled on a rolling basis. An intern’s volunteer duties generally consist of program coordination, research, editing, and writing. Eligibility: Pre-doctorate. Details: positions are unpaid, locations in New York and Washington DC.

   The PEF is an ideal opportunity for emerging researchers to join an energetic, innovative setting where they can collaborate to create the expertise, information, and tools that people and communities need to protect their health—through health promotion, prevention of disease, injury and disability, and preparedness for new health threats. Eligibility: U.S. citizens and Non-citizens* with Immigrant and Visa requirements—with exceptions, post-doctorate. Position is paid.

5. Fellowship Program at White House – http://www.whitehouse.gov/about/fellows/about Engagement in the work of the federal government lies at the heart of a White House Fellowship. Work assignments can offer unparalleled experience working with senior administration officials on ever changing issues and challenges. This work often requires long hours and, at times, unglamorous duties that require as much perseverance as ability on the Fellows’ part. Fellowship Program allows working at the different Federal Departments for one year long. Eligibility: U.S. citizens. Position is paid.
   - Calendar and Selection process details: http://www.whitehouse.gov/about/fellows/process

The White House Initiative on Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders in Washington, D.C., offers part-time and full-time internships during spring and fall semesters and full-time internships during the summer. Part-time applicants who can commit to at least 20 hours a week will be considered during the spring and fall semesters. Interns at the Initiative are responsible for assisting the staff in researching a wide range of Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) issues, including education, health, sustainable neighborhoods, economic development, civil rights, and labor and employment. In addition, interns will help write policy memos and proposals, coordinate events, and conduct outreach to national and local AAPI organizations, elected officials, and ethnic media outlets. Eligibility: U.S. citizens, and Non-citizens, pre-doctorate, candidate must be eligible to work in the United States. Position is unpaid.

7. International Affairs Fellowship in India – http://www.cfr.org/thinktank/fellowships/iaf_india.html

In 2008, the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) launched the International Affairs Fellowship in India (IAF-I). The first year was sponsored by E.L. Rothschild through the ERANDA Foundation. The IAF-I seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between the rising generations of leaders in the United States and India by expanding cultural exchange and enhancing communication between both countries on global issues. The fellowship assists mid-career scholars and professionals from the public and private sectors to advance their analytic capabilities and broaden their foreign policy experience in India. Eligibility: U.S. citizens only, post-doctorate, candidate must be between 27-45 years old. Position has a stipend for travel, and living expenses in India.

Founded in 1997, the International Affairs Fellowship in Japan (IAF-J), sponsored by Hitachi, Ltd., seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between the rising generations of leaders in the United States and Japan. The program provides a selected group of mid-career U.S. citizens the opportunity to expand their professional horizons by spending a period of research or other professional activity in Japan. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, media, NGOs, and think tanks. In cooperation with CFR, the program’s sponsor, Hitachi, Ltd., assists fellows in finding suitable host organizations in Japan. Eligibility: U.S. citizens only, post-doctorate, candidate must be between 27-45 years old. Position has a stipend for travel, and living expenses in Japan. Japanese language is not a requirement.

9. International Affairs Fellowship in South Korea http://www.cfr.org/thinktank/fellowships/iaf_southkorea.html
In 2010, the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) launched the International Affairs Fellowship in South Korea (IAF-SK), sponsored by the Asian Institute for Policy Studies. The program seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between the rising generations of leaders in the United States and South Korea by expanding cultural exchange and enhancing communication between both countries on global issues. The program assists mid-career scholars and professionals from the public and private sectors to advance their analytic capabilities and broaden their foreign policy experience in South Korea. Eligibility: U.S. citizens only, post-doctorate. Position has a stipend for travel, living and research expenses.

   Website

The Post-Graduate Fellowship (PGF) is an intensive training program that provides opportunities for self-directed research and interdisciplinary collaboration in health metrics. Strong candidates for this program have graduate-level training in quantitative methodology from one of the following areas: health policy, economics, mathematics, computer science, statistics, biostatistics, epidemiology, health services, demography, engineering, physics, medical sciences, or other related fields. Eligibility: U.S. citizens and Non-citizens, post-doctorate. Position is paid.

Often characterized as "midcareer" awards, Guggenheim Fellowships are intended for men and women who have already demonstrated exceptional capacity for productive scholarship or exceptional creative ability in the arts. Eligibility: U.S., Latin America and Caribbean citizens only.

12. NNSA Graduate Program – National Nuclear Security Administration - Website

Through the National Nuclear Security Administration's (NNSA's) NNSA Graduate Program (NGP), Fellows work on programs designed to counter nuclear proliferation and maintain nuclear security. Administered by Pacific Northwest National Laboratory in Richland, Washington, this 12-month, full-time, salaried fellowship program provides participants with specialized training and practical experience on projects and initiatives that contribute to a safer world. In addition to gaining valuable experience working with federal government programs, participants have opportunities to collaborate with the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE), as well as other government agencies, national laboratories, and non-governmental organizations. Eligibility: U.S. citizens only, pre and post-doctorate. Position is paid.

13. Presidential Management Fellows Program - Website
The Presidential Management Fellows (PMF) Program is a flagship leadership development program at the entry-level for advanced degree candidates. Created more than three decades ago, the Program attracts and selects from among the best candidates and is designed to develop a cadre of potential Federal Government leaders. Eligibility: U.S. citizens only – with exceptions. Position is paid with possibility of tuition repayments.

Nuclear security is one of the greatest challenges facing the world today. The spread of nuclear weapons to unstable and hostile states, the risk of conflict between nuclear armed nations, and the potential for terrorist groups to acquire nuclear arms all demand new thinking and creative policy solutions. The Stanton Nuclear Security Fellowship (SNSF) Program, made possible by a generous grant from the Stanton Foundation, offers younger scholars studying nuclear security issues the opportunity to spend a period of twelve months at the Council on Foreign Relations’ (CFR) offices in New York or Washington, DC, conducting policy-relevant research. Eligibility: U.S. citizens and permanent residents, pre and post-doctorate. Position is paid.

15. UNICEF Internship Program - http://www.unicef.org/about/employ/index_internship.html

The UNICEF Internship Programme offers eligible/qualified students at both Headquarters and country offices the opportunity to acquire direct practical experience in UNICEF’s work under the direct supervision of experienced UNICEF staff. Eligibility: U.S. citizens, and Non-citizens, pre-doctorate. Position is unpaid.

The United Nations provides opportunities for students enrolled in a graduate programme to undertake an internship at its Headquarters in New York, Geneva, Vienna, Nairobi, Addis Ababa, Bangkok, Beirut and Santiago. This Internship Programme is for the United Nations Secretariat in New York only. Eligibility: U.S. citizens, and Non-citizens, pre-doctorate. Positions are unpaid.

The objective of the internship is to give you a first-hand impression of the day-to-day working environment of the United Nations. You will be given a real chance to work with our people. As part of our team, working directly with outstanding and inspiring career professionals and senior management, you will be exposed to high-profile conferences, participate in meetings, and contribute to analytical work as well as organizational policy of the United Nations. Initially you will take on the amount of responsibility you can shoulder; the potential for growth, however, is yours to develop. Eligibility: U.S. citizens and Non-citizens, pre-doctorate. Positions is unpaid.
18. UNITED NATIONS Office at Geneva (UNOG) – Switzerland

The UNOG Internship Programme is intended for students enrolled in a degree programme in a graduate school (second university degree or higher) or for students having successfully completed at least four years of full-time study towards the completion of a degree at a university or equivalent institution in countries where higher education is not divided into undergraduate and graduate levels. Eligibility: U.S citizens, and Non-citizens, pre and post doctorate. Position is unpaid.

19. UNITED NATIONS Office at Vienna & United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime -

The United Nations Office at Vienna (UNOV) and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) accept unpaid interns on an ad hoc basis. The purpose of the programme is threefold: 1) To provide a framework enabling enrolled university students from diverse academic and national backgrounds to be temporarily attached to UNOV and UNODC. 2) To expose university students to the work of the United Nations and to enrich their educational experience through practical work in an international organization. 3) To make available to UNOV and UNODC, on a temporary basis, the assistance of qualified and motivated university students. Eligibility: U.S. Citizens, and Non-citizens, pre-doctorate. Position is unpaid, travel expenses are responsibility of intern.
