C PH- NEW Healthy Workplace Participatory Program Website

Welcome to the Healthy Workplace Participatory Program

Tools to Protect Your Most Valuable Asset

Use this new online tool -- the Healthy Workplace Participatory Program -- to systematically develop programs that improve employee health, safety and productivity.

Developed by researchers at the Center for Promotion and Health in the New England Workplace (CPH-NEW), the field tested tool includes an interactive assessment and seven-step planning process.

The key to a successful program in any organization is employee participation. That’s why the tools on this site were designed to engage employees at every step in the process. Research shows that employee participation -- what we call a participatory approach -- is key to a long-term, sustainable program.

How to Use This Online Tool

You can use this tool to create a new program or enhance and integrate existing programs.

If your organization has little or no health related programs

If your organization has existing programs that you want to enhance

If your organization has data about employee health

If your organization wants to do a self-assessment
CPH-NEW R2P Toolkit promotes a healthy organization

Engages employees in setting priorities and developing solutions

Improves organizational communication & collaboration about health, safety, wellness

Integrates ergonomics with health promotion initiatives

Establishes a sustainable process for continuous health/safety improvement

Develops a contextual business case for Health & Safety interventions, one intervention at a time.
CPH-NEW Resources

- Website www.uml.edu/cphnew
  - Mailing list
  - Quarterly Newsletter
  - CPH-NEWs and Views—fact sheets

- Speakers Bureau

- Pilot grants

- Healthy Worksite Program Toolkit
  - Join our mailing list to get training announcements!