

Large Aerospace Structure Modal Testing

Modal testing of large spacecraft structures requires multiple input multiple output excitation techniques. High modal density requires accurate testing techniques and modal parameter estimation techniques to acquire data suitable for correlation to detailed analytical models.