

Large Structure Operating Tests

Large structures are often tested with ambient environmental conditions in order to acquire data and determine the operating characteristics of structures such as telescopes, buildings and bridges, for instance.