

Efficient Reduced Order Models for Multibody Dynamic Response Simulations

Several different projects have been completed in support of this overall effort. Different approaches for reduced order, test verified, component and system models have been developed including both modal and frequency response based techniques.