

Acoustic/Modal Prediction for Material Structure Integrity

Modal impact testing and acoustic performance testing is used for the determination of material suitability for a variety of applications. Comparative signatures are used for application suitability and material acceptability